9.94A.010. Purpose

The purpose of this chapter is to make the criminal justice system accountable to the public by developing a system for the sentencing of felony defendants which guides discretionary decisions affecting sentences, and to:

- (1) Ensure that the punishment for a criminal offense is proportionate to the seriousness of the offense and the defendant's criminal history;
- (2) Promote respect for the law by providing punishment which is just;
- (3) Be commensurate with the punishment imposed on others committing similar offenses;
- (4) Protect the public;
- (5) Offer the defendant an opportunity to improve himself or herself;
- (6) Make frugal use of the state's and local governments' resources; and
- (7) Reduce the risk of reoffending by defendants in the community by offering, where appropriate, rehabilitative and treatment services.
- (8) More evenly balance sentencing decisions between the executive and the judiciary.

Commented [RR1]: Greg Link and Kim Gordon suggest, "In the absence of a cap, we would instead propose:
1) keep your proposed ranges;
2) require aggravating factors be pleaded and proven to jury beyond a reasonable doubt;
3) a finding of an aggravator adds 10% to the top of the range.

As with your proposal, this assumes: (1) elimination of multipliers; (2) enhancements and aggravators are treated as the same thing and (3) court is imposing single sentence regardless of number of offenses."

9.94A.015. Finding--Intent--2000 c 28

The sentencing reform act has been amended many times since its enactment in 1981. While each amendment promoted a valid public purpose, some sections of the act have become unduly lengthy and repetitive. The legislature finds that it is appropriate to simplify Washington State's sentencing scheme.

The legislature does not intend chapter 28, Laws of 2000 to make, and no provision of chapter 28, Laws of 2000 shall be construed as making, a substantive change in the sentencing reform act.

The legislature does intend to clarify that persistent offenders are not eligible for extraordinary medical placement.

9.94A.020. Short title

This chapter may be known and cited as the Judicial Accountability in Sentencing Act.

9.94A.505. Sentences

(1) When a person is convicted of a felony, the court shall impose punishment as provided in this chapter.

(2) The court shall impose a sentence as provided in this section and as applicable in the case:

(a) Unless another term of confinement applies, the court shall first calculate both the mandatory sentencing range and the advisory sentencing range and state the Court's understanding of both ranges on the record in open court. If either party objects to the Court's calculation, that party shall object in open court and state for the record that party's understanding of the appropriate mandatory and advisory range. Once the Court has established the applicable ranges, the Court shall consider the circumstances of the offense, the rehabilitative and other needs of the defendant, the impact of the crime on the victim and/or the community, and the purposes of this chapter as set forth in RCW 9.94A.010. The Court may also consider whether:

(i) The defendant and the state both stipulate that justice is best served by the imposition of an exceptional sentence outside the standard range, and the court finds the exceptional sentence to be consistent with and in furtherance of the interests of justice and the purposes of the sentencing reform act.

(ii) To a significant degree, the victim was an initiator, willing participant, aggressor, or provoker of the incident;

(iii) Before detection, the defendant compensated, or made a good faith effort to compensate, the victim of the criminal conduct for any damage or injury sustained;

(iv) The defendant committed the crime under duress, coercion, threat, or compulsion insufficient to constitute a complete defense but which significantly affected his or her conduct;

(v) The defendant, with no apparent predisposition to do so, was induced by others to participate in the crime;

(vi) The defendant's capacity to appreciate the wrongfulness of his or her conduct, or to conform his or her conduct to the requirements of the law, was significantly impaired;

(vii) The offense was principally accomplished by another person and the defendant manifested extreme caution or sincere concern for the safety or well-being of the victim.

(viii) The operation of the multiple offense policy, or the existence of unscored misdemeanors or other offenses results in a presumptive sentence that is clearly excessive or lenient in light of the purpose of this chapter, as expressed in RCW 9.94A.010;

(ix) The defendant or the defendant's children suffered a continuing pattern of physical or sexual abuse by the victim of the offense and the offense is a response to that abuse;

Commented [GL2]: Cases have held that other than when entering a guilty plea defendant is not obligated to provide statement of what the correct sentence is.

(f) A sentence more than 50% below the low end of the advisory sentencing range shall be presumed unreasonable on appeal, unless the parties have agreed to a higher sentence.

(g) If Defendant is under 18 years of age, the presumptions of unreasonableness, above, do not apply. The Court shall consider mitigating circumstances related to the defendant's youth, including age, immaturity, impetuosity, failure to appreciate risks and consequences, the nature of the juvenile's surrounding environment and family circumstances, the extent of the juvenile's participation in the crime, the way familial and peer pressures may have affected them, how youth impacted any legal defense, and any factors suggesting that the child might be successfully rehabilitated.

Commented [GL3]: I suggested the presumption of unreasonableness on aggravated sentences because the proposal would eliminate the role of the jury as a check on both prosecutorial and judicial discretion. Since the jury doesn't have any such role in mitigated sentences I don't see a similar justification for a presumption of unreasonableness on mitigated sentences. Too, I think that for at least juveniles convicted as adults this is contrary to Houston-Sconniers holding that 8th Amnd't requires complete discretion.

Commented [RR4]: Greg Link and Kim Gordon have further suggested that this language read, "a sentence is unreasonable if exceeds the top of the advisor rage by more than 25% unless the parties agree a higher sentence his appropriate." [50% for mitigated sentence]

- (ix) RCW 9.94A.507, relating to certain sex offenses;

(xi) If there are more than one matter being sentenced on the same date, the Court shall calculate the mandatory and advisory guidelines for each offense. However, the Court shall only impose sentence on the highest range, considering the existence of the other current offenses as a factor for determining the appropriate sentence within the mandatory sentencing range.

(xii) RCW 9.94A.603, relating to felony driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor or any drug and felony physical control of a vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor or any drug.

The court may impose a sentence which provides more than one year of confinement and a community custody term under RCW 9.94A.701 if the court finds reasons justifying an exceptional sentence as provided in RCW 9.94A.535.

(3) If the court imposes a sentence requiring confinement of thirty days or less, the court may, in its discretion, specify that the sentence be served on consecutive or intermittent days. A sentence requiring more than thirty days of confinement shall be served on consecutive days. Local jail administrators may schedule court-ordered intermittent sentences as space permits.

(4) If a sentence imposed includes payment of a legal financial obligation, it shall be imposed as provided in RCW 9.94A.750, 9.94A.753, 9.94A.760, and 43.43.7541.

(6) The sentencing court shall give the defendant credit for all confinement time served before the sentencing if that confinement was solely in regard to the offense for which the defendant is being sentenced.

DRAFT Group R Draft Language DRAFT

- (7) The sentencing court shall not give the defendant credit for any time the defendant was required to comply with an electronic monitoring program prior to sentencing if the defendant was convicted of one of the following offenses:
- (a) A violent offense;

- (10) In any sentence of partial confinement, the court may require the defendant to serve the partial confinement in work release, in a program of home detention, on work crew, or in a combined program of work crew and home detention.
